

I am unaware if it is a violation of FCC rules to promise a service and not give it, but I have Cellular Phone Service through Verizon Wireless and our local phone company has told the Verizon Company that it would provide caller-id on the cell-phones for land-line calls. For example, if I receive a call on my cell phone from my wife at home, the home number is supposed to show up on my cell phone. Well this service is offered to Cellular-One customers, but Centurytel in Montana hasn't gotten off of their BUTT to do it for the Verizon Wireless users. Is there a way that this could be rectified? Thank you in advance for your help in this matter.
